INSTRUMENTATION

Aerodyn Engineering Inc. provides design, fabrication, and installation of sensors to meet the most challenging applications. We routinely design for harsh environments with high levels of temperature, pressure, and vibration.

A partial listing of our instrumentation capabilities are:

- Strain Gage Application – low and high temperature, dynamic and static
- Temperature Sensors – thermocouples, thermistors, and RTDs
- Pressure Sensors – dynamic and static
- Rake and Probe Assemblies – AEI design or build to print
- Custom Force Transducers – bearing thrust, shaft torque, shaft bending
- Rotating Sensors – strain, temperature, pressure, and acceleration up to 400,000 Gs
- Airfoil Sensors – leading edge and embedded
- Vibration – accelerometers, proximity sensors
- Tip Clearance Sensors – capacitive, DC, and dynamic
- Slip Ring Systems – hardware and installation design
- Telemetry Systems – design, fabrication, and calibration
- Spin Test Capability – proof and performance verification

AEI can define, design, and machine modifications to engine hardware required for sensor installation and lead wire routing paths. We can assist with engine assembly, wire routing, and termination of sensors, either at our facility or on-site. As we also provide data acquisition services, we have a complete system approach to instrumentation and test. We anticipate the needs and requirements of the entire project, ultimately benefiting the customer.

AEROSHIM

Aeroshim are preformed segments of metal foil used to secure hard or soft cylindrical sensor leads by tack welding to a surface. Standard Aeroshim covers a wide range of common lead diameters and numbers of leads placed side by side. The temperature environment and substrate material to be welded to dictates the material of shim needed, but standard Aeroshim, made of Inconel 600 alloy, is very versatile. Customers are amazed at how much time and money can be saved by taking advantage of this simple and widely used product. For requirements not met by standard Aeroshim, Aerodyn is especially capable of fabricating a custom type in a cost-effective manner.

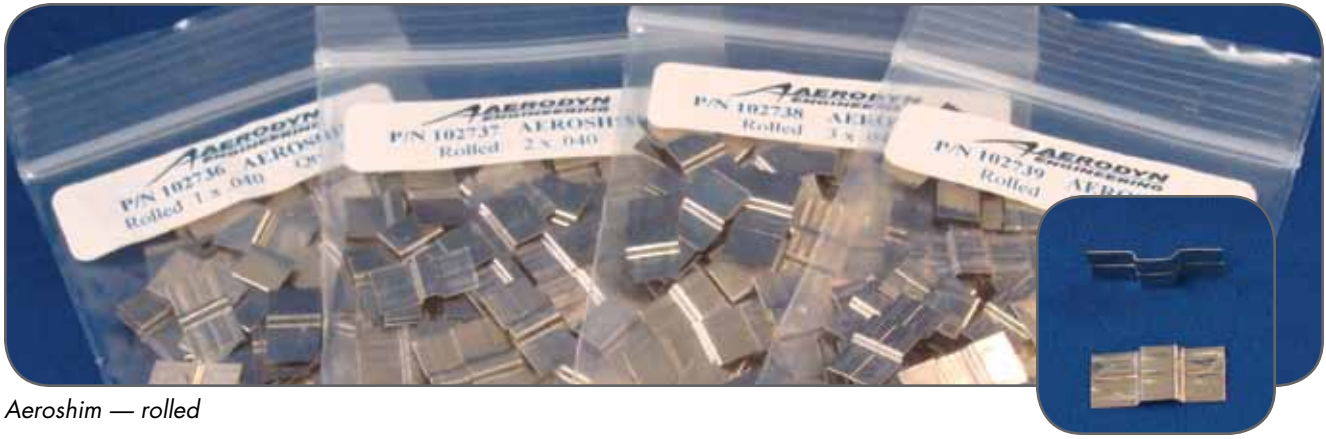

STRUCTURAL AND MECHANICAL ANALYSIS

AEI understands that a structural failure of instrumentation installed in a critical location can lead to a catastrophic failure of machinery. We can perform a structural, thermal, and mechanical analysis of the instrumentation hardware utilizing our in-house Ansys® and Modal Analysis capabilities, reducing the risk to expensive equipment and increasing the safety of on-site personnel.

THE COMPLETE SOLUTION

Our customers realize their greatest benefit when they contract us for the entire sensor system, from design and fabrication to instrumentation application and test. Concurrent design and manufacture allow all parts to be trial fitted and proven to work prior to delivery, eliminating unforeseen problems and costly delays during on-site testing. Examples of these types of systems include slip ring installations with adapting hardware, telemetry systems, rig hardware rework, and instrumentation assemblies.
